Three of Sightseers on Bridge at Quebec Rescued
From Raging Waters of St. Lawrence.

TEN PERSONS SEEN
ON ONE CAKE OF ICE

All Efforts To Save Ill-
Fated Ones From Watery
Doom Have Been Futile.

Quebec, February 7.—Fourteen persons were adrift on cakes of ice in the swelling waters of the St. Lawrence river tonight, and efforts of a ferry boat to reach them were futile. The fourteen were members of a party of seventeen who were standing on an ice bridge between Quebec and Lévis when it snapped and broke away.

Three were rescued. Hurriedly formed rescue parties set out for Quebec bridge, toward which the ice cakes were drifting, in the hope they could rescue the victims with ropes as they passed beneath them. From points along the shore it was reported as many as nine or ten persons had been seen on one cake of the floating ice.

The ice bridge, the first formed here in 25 years, was an unusual sight and hundreds of persons flocked to witness it. The persons who were carried away when it broke were standing about the middle of the stream, making efforts at rescue all the more difficult.

Three persons rescued were comparatively close to the shore. With two others they were thrown into the river and while their companions were swept away they were dragged from the water by employees of a ferry company. The fate of the other two was not known, and while little hope was held out for them, it was thought possible they might have scrambled aboard one of the drifting pieces of ice.

The ice bridge was formed with startling suddenness early this morning. As the crowd of curious gathered the more venturesome started out across the bridge. Although the ice appeared to be solid and thick, a brilliant winter sun was believed to have played its part, along with an ebb tide, in bringing about the disaster.

CENTRAL FIGURES

ARGENTINE GASPS

OF UNUSUAL HEAT

Buenos Aires, February 7.—While the ice clinks in the cocktails, Americans here fan themselves and wish they were back in the winter winds of the U. S. A.

An extraordinary heat wave, the worst of the summer to date, is sweeping the Argentine republic.

Many streams are drying up, and navigation is impossible in the upper reaches of the Parana river. River towns, isolated by the drying up of streams, are suffering from lack of trade.

FIGHT ON SCHOOL
BUDGET CERTAIN

"Progressives" and "Conservatives" Will Clash
Over Amount To Be Spent in 1924.

A definite split between "conservative" and "progressive" members of the Atlanta board of education was in prospect for the February meeting next Tuesday when the finance and building committee Thursday night approved a tentative 1924 school budget providing expenditure of nearly $2,700,000. This is more than $200,000 in excess of anticipated revenues, thus making a deficit of $800,000 certain at the end of the year in view of the 1923 deficit and the necessity for completing Girls' High school.

The committee did not vote final approval of the tentative budget, holding it for possible changes before it is recommended to the school board for adoption Tuesday. W. W. Gaines, chairman of the committee, and John T. Hancock, president of the board, expressed doubt that the figures would be cut in the final sheet.

Majority of "Progressives." A majority of the committee is definitely behind the "progressive" school program outlined by Superintendent Willis A. Sutton. They have taken the position that the school program must be carried out and that if the city has not enough money to pay for it, the city must get more money.

The agreement in question "was ultimately incorporated in the peace treaty," Lloyd George said.

The ex-premier expressed regret that Premier MacDonald had not waited to hear his explanation of the situation, and again mocked the "secret compact" story by declaring: "Mr. Ramsay MacDonald will probably find that most, if not all, of these documents have already been published by Andre Tardieu in France or by Ray Stannard Baker in America."

Both these gentlemen, between them, have published most of the secret documents of the Paris conference," he said.

Spender Takes Blame. Lloyd George's declaration included a verbatim statement from Harold Spender.

BY CHARLES M. McCANN.
London, February 7.—Declaring that "Woodrow Wilson acted with perfect loyalty," David Lloyd George has flatly repudiated the now famous newspaper interview quoting him as saying that Woodrow Wilson and ex-Premier Clemenceau of France signed a secret compact at the peace conference dealing with allied occupation of the Rhineland.

Lloyd George's declaration came in a statement issued Thursday after a day of excitement in political circles over charges that stirred two continents.

The sensational charge attributed to the war premier was of such grave character that it is understood Premier MacDonald took immediate steps to communicate with Premier Poincaré of France regarding the alleged interview.

Denies Interview. "I did not give the interview and was most surprised when my attention was called to it by telephone messages from London newspapers," Lloyd George said.

He declared that ex-President Wilson had acted loyally in the question of the occupation of the Rhineland, and that it was "ridiculous" to describe the agreement as a "secret compact."

The agreement in question "was ultimately incorporated in the peace treaty," Lloyd George said.

Trade Possibilities.

Washington, February 7.—(Special.)—Mayor Walter A. Sims, of Atlanta, will serve as chairman of the industrial division of the Cuban trade commission, which will make a trip to Cuba next month aimed at building up trade relations between the island and this country, particularly as they affect the southern states. Mayor Sims, who is here attending the southern commercial congress, accepted the chairmanship Thursday.

B. S. Barker, secretary of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, who is also here, will make the Cuban trip and said he expects several other Atlantans to go with the commission. Dr. Clarence J. Owens, president of the southern commercial congress, will have active charge of the commission, while William Jennings Bryan will hold honorary chairmanship.

Leaves on March 5. The Cuban government has given its indorsement to the trade trip, and Ambassador Torriente here has had a large part in promoting it, and has given his assistance in making the plans. Dr. Owens will make a trip

Carson City, Nev., February 7.—Thomas Russell, Mexican murderer, condemned to die at 10 o'clock Friday morning in Nevada's lethal gas chamber, was granted a rehearing at 4 o'clock this afternoon by the state board of pardons.

Declining to act in answer to Gee Jon's pleas for mercy, the pardon board refused to grant him a new hearing.

ATLANTA GIVEN
GUARD REGIMENT

General Cox Authorized
To Draw Up Plans To Present for War Department Approval.

Authorization for an additional regiment of state militia for Georgia, with headquarters at Atlanta, was granted Thursday by the war department, according to word just received by The Constitution from Washington.

A delegation from Georgia composed of Adjutant General Charles H. Cox, of the Georgia national guard, Major Walter Sims, of Atlanta; B. S. Barker, secretary of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce; Senators William J. Harris and Walter George, and Congressman William D. Upshaw and W. C. Wright, was instrumental in having the regiment allocated to this city.

Cox Will Draw Plans. The authorization was granted to General Cox, and he has been instructed to draw up plans for the new regiment and present them to the department for approval.

Under existing regulations, a mid-western state was forced to give up one regiment and several states had asked that it be allotted to them. The movement to secure the additional unit was fostered here by a group of state and city officials and citizens interested in military affairs, who drew attention to the fact that Georgia's military forces had been lowered to shrink following the world war and who also emphasized the importance of the new unit for protective purposes in event of riots and disorders.

Washington Story. The telegram received by The Constitution follows:

"Authorization for another regiment of state militia for Georgia, with headquarters at Atlanta, was granted Thursday to Adjutant General Charles H. Cox, of the Georgia national guard, by the war department."

Adjutant General Cox was accompanied to the war department by Mayor Sims, of Atlanta; B. S. Barker, secretary of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce; Senators Harris and George, and Representatives Upshaw and Wright.

General Cox was requested to draw up plans for the new regiment and present them to the department for its approval."

Anticipated revenues were increased $16,000 from public utility receipts and taxes, and salary increases for sanitary department flushers were revoked by the finance committee of council Thursday to provide funds to purchase four new motor trucks to completely motorize the department. The flushers originally had been granted raises from $27.50 to $30 a week. Their pay is to remain at the smaller figure. The number of flushers was increased from 10 to 12, the number employed last year.

The committee, at request of Councilman J. A. Beall, voted an additional $800 to the policewoman's bureau to make possible employment of two women to organize it. Councilman Beall, vice chairman of the police committee, said he would appoint a committee of three club women headed by Mrs. Harry Goodhart to nominate women for the places. The police committee, he said, will elect the nominees at the regular meeting Wednesday night.

RepaVing of the entire length of Broad street from Luckie to Mitchell was assured Thursday afternoon when the Fulton county board of commissioners voted to pay the city's share of more than $25,000. The work, which will cost approximately $80,000, has long been sought by Broad street merchants.

During the session Thursday afternoon, which ended at 6:30 o'clock following a decision to hold an adjourned meeting Saturday to complete business which they were unable to touch Thursday, the commissioners approved expenditures amounting to $55,000.

Industrial Bureau Fund. Outstanding among the appropriations was $10,000 which the commissioners agreed to contribute to the organization in Atlanta of an industrial bureau, provided $20,000 is secured for the same purpose through other sources. Ten thousand dollars was appropriated for the use of the extension bureau of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, to be devoted to nationwide advertising of the city; $5,000 was donated for the upkeep and improvement of Grady hospital and a similar sum appropriated for the Battle Hill sanitarium.

Numerous petitions were heard for paving, grading, school improvements and one request to appropriate $500 to help defray expenses of entertaining the convention of the American Society of Civil Engineers, scheduled to be held in Atlanta in April. The latter request introduced by Paul Norcross was referred to the finance committee. General Manager of Parks Wallace asked for an appropriation of $5,000 to be devoted to establishing two playgrounds, one in

BARLOW TO SWELL
MEMORIAL FUND

Offers Half of Proceeds From Claims He Has Filed With U. S. for War-Time Inventions.

Washington, February 7.—(Special.)—Lester P. Barlow, formerly of Cleveland, Ohio, consulting engineer of the Stone mountain memorial to the Confederacy, has offered to turn over half of the proceeds from claims he has filed with the government for royalties on war-time inventions, to the Stone mountain memorial and half to the Mothers and Babies' Maternity hospital at Cleveland, Ohio.

Barlow called at the white house Thursday and asked the president to request Secretary of War Weeks to expedite settlement of these claims, which he says amount to several hundred thousand dollars. He informed the president that the money received would be turned over to these two projects.

The inventor also called at the office of Senator George, of Georgia, and asked him to aid in speeding settlement of these claims.

Barlow said he was bitterly opposed to war-time profits and desires to relinquish those due him on his inventions in favor of the hospital in Cleveland and the memorial.

Commenting on the memorial, Barlow stated that it would make a magnificent national park, bringing thousands of people to that section. He called it the "open house of the south," the "get-acquainted ground of the nation," where unification and final cementing of the states will be accomplished.

He stated that he will endeavor to get others with war claims to make similar donations.

Hollywood, Cal., February 7.—Hollywood had a new bit of matrimonial gossip Thursday—the secret marriage of Corinne Griffith, screen star, and Walter Morosco, son of Oliver Morosco, theatrical producer.

It was authoritatively reported that the couple was wedded in Tia Juana nearly two weeks ago, credible persons having seen the names on the license register of the Mexican city. Neither could be found to give personal confirmation to the report.

The blonde star, who has just finished a picture, is nearest in Los Angeles not Hollywood, it was stated at the studio.

Morosco is "on a hunting trip," having left some time last week, according to announcement sent from his father's home here.

Miss Griffith, who recently obtained a divorce in Texas, has been seen with Morosco frequently during the past two months, and the film capital couple have had them engaged several times.

The real family name, Mitchell, was used by Morosco in securing the marriage license, according to persons who are responsible for the report.

Decatur, Ga., February 7.—(Special.)—V. S. Morgan, of Decatur, was elected ordinary of De Kalb county to fill the unexpired term of the late Judge James Roan George in the special call election held in this county today. About 1,750 votes were polled, one of the lightest votes cast in the county in several elections.

Other candidates polled in the following order: Judge E. T. White, Lithonia; W. D. Wallace, of Chambliss; Clem Jolly, of Clarkston; Carl N. Guess, of Stone Mountain; L. F. Jordan, of Decatur, and W. T. Hudson, of Decatur.

SCALP OF DENBY
SAFE FROM FOES

Senate Expected To Pass
Resolution Demanding
Resignation, But by Only
Small Majority.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.

Washington, February 7.—The head of Secretary of the Navy Denby now appears secure, unless President Coolidge withdraws his support, or Denby himself voluntarily gives way before the pressure being brought against him.

While it is very likely that the senate will pass the resolution asking his resignation on Friday, indications are that the vote will be so close as to kill all possibility of later impeachment, which requires a two-thirds vote of the senate.

Dismissal by the president or voluntary resignation is the only other way to force Denby out. The strength which surged up behind the secretary in the bitter debate in the senate Thursday indicates that a two-thirds vote to unseat him is practically impossible, especially in view of the general opinion that there is no evidence of any criminal intention on the part of the secretary of the navy.

Pepper Leads Defense. Senator Pepper, of Pennsylvania, led the defense of Denby Thursday, declaring that it was not the senate's business to pass on the secretary without an investigation by committee.

Senator Bruce, of Maryland, a democrat, joined the protest of Pepper. Other democrats, including Robinson, of Arkansas, minority leader, answered that the senate knew the facts, and it was no time for quibbling over constitutional questions.

Robinson stated afterward that he expected the resolution to pass, but by a very slim margin. Regular republicans are expected to vote solidly against it. Two progressives, it is understood, will join them, Borah, of Idaho, and Howell, of Nebraska. Bruce will leave the democratic ranks, and it is rumored that one or two others may, which will make the vote exceedingly close.

The strength which swelled up behind Denby late Thursday afternoon came as a surprise. Pepper, usually mild-mannered and even-tempered, Minot, N. D., February 7.—North Dakota democrats meeting in state convention here today indorsed William G. McAdoo for that party's presidential nomination.

Washington, February 7.—William G. McAdoo announced here tonight that he had terminated his professional service with E. L. Doheny, California oil magnate.

Mr. McAdoo's announcement was contained in a letter to Chairman Lenroot of the senate oil committee, in which he expressed the desire to testify before the committee immediately. He may be heard tomorrow.

The former treasury secretary said that when he read in the newspapers Mr. Doheny's "amazing disclosures about his transactions with ex-Secretary Fall," he refrained from immediately terminating his professional services with Mr. Doheny, as was his first impulse, but had done so now, "fearing that the newspaper accounts might be as vicious and unfair," to Mr. Doheny as some of them had been to him.

"I indignantly protest," wrote Mr. McAdoo, "against the whispered suggestions that I—and the others, might be as vicious and unfair" to Mexican enterprises of which Mr. Doheny is the head—share any taint of any kind. Coolidge Instructs De-

of Two Governors.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, February 7.—The department of justice will immediately set in motion its machinery to go to the bottom of charges by Governor McMaster, of South Dakota, that "allied interests of the Standard Oil" had cornered the crude oil supply and enhanced gasoline prices. The department action has been taken upon instructions from President Coolidge, to whom was directed today a telegram from the South Dakota governor setting forth his charges, and also a similar message from Governor Bryan of Nebraska.

Shortly after the announcement that the president had ordered an inquiry into the gasoline and crude oil situation, former Representative Campbell, of Kansas, speaking for the Prairie Oil and Gas company, submitted to the executive a statement giving reasons for fluctuation of crude oil and gasoline prices in the last year. Mr. Campbell suggested that the operation of the economic law of supply and demand alone is responsible for the fluctuating price.

Broadens Present Probe. The president's instructions, it was said at the department of justice, would mean a broadening of an inquiry which has been under way many months. United States attorneys long have had instructions, of officials added, to aid local officials in efforts to run down monopolistic tendencies of all kinds, and those orders, it was emphasized, apply to oil and gasoline as well as any other commodities.

Although there has been constant observation of conditions in the oil industry, department officials said there would now be an intensive study of the situations of which the two state executives have complained.

Governor McMaster declared in his telegram that South Dakota had "performed its duty in preventing excess

IRREGULARITY DENIED
BY SECRETARY MELLON

Brewer Denies He Misled President Harding
Into Wholesale Dismissals of Engravers.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, February 7.—Investigation of charges that duplicate bonds have been destroyed in the treasury department was asked in a resolution introduced today by Representative Laguardia, republican, New York.

Mr. Laguardia's resolution was based on charges of Charles B. Brewer, who said proof that there had been duplications was destroyed. Brewer yesterday submitted some of his exhibits to a number of members of the house.

The resolution would establish who canceled the bonds and who destroyed them and by whose order it was done. Brewer, department of justice agent, in a report to President Coolidge and Attorney-General Daugherty, a copy of which was filed today in the District of Columbia supreme court, said he expected to prove that knowledge of duplicated government bonds had been suppressed by the treasury department, and evidence of the duplication destroyed there.

Mellon Denies Irregularity. Secretary Mellon at the same time reiterated that the treasury, in its long investigation of the matter, had found no evidence of malicious irregularity.

There has been duplication of numbers of bonds," said Mr. Mellon, "but for every bond that has gone out its face value has been paid into the treasury."

Brewer has sued for an injunction against government officials to prevent them from taking certain securities he has been using in his investigation of bureau of printing and engraving affairs, and the report was filed with the court as a part of the exhibit in the case.

A denial that he had misled President Harding into dismissing the 25 bureau employees was included by Brewer, who said the president was aware of conditions before seeing Brewer, and that he was fully justified in his action.

Some of the facts Brewer said he expected to prove were:

"That conditions in the bureau of engraving in March, 1922, were well nigh appalling.

"Knowledge of duplicate bonds was suppressed by treasury officials and the secret service.

"Secret service called off duplicate bond investigation December, 1919.

"Inordinate number of duplicates appear in certain listed lots of surrendered bonds.

BRYAN SCORNS MOVES OF WETS

Birmingham, Ala., February 7.—If there is serious threat to the prohibition law, there will be no other issue before the people in the forthcoming presidential campaign, William Jennings Bryan said here today, but he does not believe that such effort will be pushed.

"An effort will be made to get more alcohol into the permitted drinks. I do not think that it can succeed, but on a matter so important those who are friends to prohibition ought to take no chances. There ought to be such outspoken and uncompromising attitude as to silence all discussion on the subject and permit no consideration of the question. As long as the wets think they have a chance, they will divert attention from other issues. If they can show the country there is a danger of weakening of the law—the prohibition law—there will be no other issue until the wets are completely overthrown and violators of the prohibition law counted as no other than criminals."

U. S. To Remove Marine Guard From Managua

Washington, February 7.—Plans for the withdrawal of the American legation guard of 100 marines from Managua, Nicaragua, after the inauguration of the new administration there in January, 1925, were announced today by the state department.

Arrangements have been made between the two governments for the organization of an efficient constabulary to assure the maintenance of order when the marine detachment is recalled.

Correspondence between the Washington and Managua governments made public with the announcement shows that the latter has accepted the offer of the American government to provide instructors in creating the constabulary as well as the services of Dr. H. W. Dods, secretary of the National Municipal league, to assist in the administration of the electoral law adopted by Nicaragua. Dr. Dods will be assisted by a limited number of technical advisers.

Suspect in Shooting At Terminal Station Is Held by Police

L. L. Walters, 28 Houston street, was arrested Thursday morning in connection with the shooting early Monday morning of Lee Davis, employee of the news stand in the Terminal station. His bond is fixed at $100, pending arraignment before the recorder Friday afternoon.

Davis did not see his assailant at the time, and it is thought that the robber had secreted himself behind the counter. When Davis turned out the lights preparatory to closing up the stand, he was fired upon from behind and then rifled his pockets. Davis was removed to Grady hospital, where it was found that his wound was not serious.

COMMUNIST VOTES INCOME TAX CUT

Washington, February 7.—The new revenue bill providing for a complete revision of federal taxes and for a 25 per cent reduction in 1925 income taxes was voted favorably reported to the house today by the ways and means committee.

The vote was 15 to 3, eight of the eleven democrats on the committee voting "yes." The committee announced that they opposed income tax rates fixed by the republicans in private on the lives suggested by Secretary Mellon but that they did not wish to delay reporting of the bill.

Opening the debate on the constitutional amendment against the tax-free securities, Chairman Hull, of the rules committee, urged passage of the resolution which would require a two-thirds vote. He pointed out that the federal government is now losing income from approximately $11,000,000,000 invested in tax-free municipal, county and state bonds.

Similar views were expressed by Representative Burton, republican, Ohio, while Representative Garrett, the democratic leader; Representative Lister, republican, Kentucky, and Representative Graham, republican, Pennsylvania, led the attack on the measure on the ground that it invaded states' rights.

Mr. Poin said the legislation was "loaded with destruction for the agricultural section but it is not so for the industrial section."

Representative Longworth, Ohio, republican leader, declared passage of the amendment would take some of the burden off the great number of taxpayers who earned their income and put more of it on the "few rich who receive incomes from investments in state and municipal securities which cannot now be taxed."

The rule placing the resolution in order before the house was adopted by a vote of 225 to 132. A similar vote on the amendment itself was taken, a two-thirds majority being necessary.

GLENN YOUNG ARRESTS GRAND JURY FOREMAN

Herrin, Ill., February 7.—E. C. Frick, assistant supervisor of Herrin township and foreman of the Williamson county grand jury in session at Marion, was arrested at his home last night by S. Glenn Young, prohibition worker and paid employee of the Ku Klux Klan, after Young and the local police had raided Frick's home on a warrant charging possession of intoxicating liquor. A quantity of liquor is said to have been found in Frick's home.

Frick, a former member of the Herrin police force until the force was disbanded during a visit to the county following a series of dry raids, was to be arraigned before United States Commissioner Hart at Benton.

The grand jury of which Frick is foreman is expected to consider cases against Young and other dry workers, who are charged with assault.

Negro Soldiers Held For Rioting Seek Clemency

Washington, February 7.—Investigation by the war department of the cases of 54 members of the Twenty-fourth infantry, formerly imprisoned in Leavenworth penitentiary for participation in the Houston, Texas, riots of 1917, was promised by President Coolidge today to a delegation of negroes who asked clemency for the imprisoned men.

The delegation, headed by James Walton Johnson, secretary of the national association for the advancement of colored people, presented a petition signed by more than 120,000, they said, asking for executive clemency.

Bishop Hunting Dead.

Reno, Nev., February 7.—The Rt. Rev. George Coolidge Hunting, fourth bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church in Nevada, died last night at his home in Reno after an illness of but a few days. He was 53 years old. Pneumonia was given as the cause of death. Bishop Hunting, who is a cousin of President Coolidge, served pastorates in Evanston, Wyo., Salt Lake City and Virginia City, Nev., before being named bishop in 1914.

MADDOO RESIGNS JOB WITH DOHENY

make good this denial, it is not so important, but particularly do I resent the insinuation that because the late Franklin K. Lane, after his service as secretary of the interior, resigned and became, quite openly, an officer of the Doheny companies, he thereby shares the taint of corruption. It would be ridiculous if not so vicious.

"What I have done was within my rights as a lawyer. In my representation of the Doheny companies in Mexican matters I never dealt in political favors, or other favors. If my conduct in acting professionally in these matters is open to criticism, then no lawyer can take a cabinet officer unless he is rich enough to give up all professional employment as business when he comes out of office. I do not believe that any such standard is wise or proper. I believe that the spirit of fair play of the honest minded American people will not misunderstand my course in this matter."

"I take this opportunity to state that I am not guilty of betraying their trust as disclosed in this investigation."

Mr. McCord, out of his communication, written the committee by Mr. Doheny and made public today by Chairman Lenoir.

"Mr. Doheny's letter," Mr. McCord wrote, "confirms my statement issued recently in Los Angeles, namely, that my former firm (McCord, Doheny & Co.) was not involved in fees and that I have received as special counsel at Los Angeles $25,000 per annum for the past two years and that Mr. Doheny's previous statement that there had been paid to me or to my firm and myself $250,000 was incorrect."

Renews Request to Be Heard.

"Despite this correction, I desire to appear before the committee immediately. I conceive, notwithstanding that Mr. Doheny's letter emphasizes his testimony to the effect that my former firm was not involved in fees and that I have received as special counsel at Los Angeles $25,000 per annum for the past two years and that Mr. Doheny's previous statement that there had been paid to me or to my firm and myself $250,000 was incorrect."

"It is also important that I appear promptly because the newspapers throughout the land have blazoned my name on the front page in glaring type in the most unfair and malicious manner as though I were involved in some way in this nauseating scandal. This has had the wholly unfair effect of diverting attention, temporarily at least, from the real issue, which is my right to practice law, and to the innocent shall be made to suffer in order that the guilty may be protected or shielded by this transparent effort to bring odium upon innocent men connected with a former administration."

Record An Open Book.

The former secretary declared that his record in the administration of Woodrow Wilson was "an open book" and that he had betrayed no trust, had not enriched himself at the expense of his country or its people, nor permitted any other man to do so.

Explaining that he had finally resigned because of his "reduced circumstances" to resume the practice of his profession, he told of his entering an active law firm in New York in 1919 and then since January 1, 1922, practicing law in Los Angeles.

"In my work both in New York and in Los Angeles," he continued, "I have accepted such law business as has been offered to me and which I was legally entitled to take, providing the business was honorable and proper. In addition to arguing cases in the courts, I have argued matters before some of the federal departments and have filed briefs and memoranda in these departments, among others the state and treasury departments and the shipping board."

Met Doheny After Retirement.

"I never knew Mr. Doheny until after I resigned as secretary of the treasury. About a year after my resignation he called on me in my office in New York City and expressed a desire to retain me in his company's Mexican difficulties, growing out of article 27 in the Mexican constitution, adopted some years before, which the Mexican government was attempting to confiscate property of American citizens by giving retroactive effect to said article. I knew that our government, early in 1918, while I was a member of the cabinet, had solemnly protested against the unfairness of the retroactive effect of this article of the Mexican constitution and that to represent a client whose property in Mexico was jeopardized thereby was in harmony. I was willing to accept the employment and my firm was paid a fee of $100,000."

"Thereafter for a period of over two years I and members of my firm conferred frequently with Mr. Doheny and his officers and joined with other counsel representing American oil interests in Mexico in filing briefs and memoranda and representations to the state department in an attempt to get such diplomatic action as the rights of the oil companies were entitled to under the various notes of the state department."

"During the year 1921 I made a trip to Mexico and interviewed Mexican authorities, among others President Obregon, in an effort to have the retroactive effect of the clause in the Mexican constitution, to which I have referred, modified or changed. On my return I advised Mr. Doheny that the oil companies having interests in Mexico would, in my opinion, do well to have representatives confer with the Mexican officials with a view to effecting an adjustment."

"In January, 1922, my firm dissolved and I informed Mr. Doheny that it was my intention to take up my residence and practice law in California, whereupon he said to me that he would like to retain my special counsel in connection with his companies at an annual compensation of $25,000 and proposed the duration of such employment to be for a period of four years. To this I suggested a modification so that at the end of three years, at the will of either party, my services could be terminated. During my professional employment since moving to California, Mr. Doheny has conferred with me from time to time upon questions concerned exclusively with his Mexican interests."

DOHENY SCALES MADDOO FIGURES.

Washington, February 7.—E. L. Doheny, the California oilman, has notified the senate oil committee that instead of the $250,000 he recently estimated his interests had paid William G. McCord's law firm, the amount actually paid so far is $150,000, including an annual fee of $25,000 to Mr. McCord himself.

In a letter on the subject sent to Chairman Lenoir, Mr. Doheny added that none of the money, or any other payments, ever had been given by the McCord firm with regard to "any matter relating to the contracts and leases which have been under investigation by your committee."

"On the first instant while testifying before your committee as a witness under subpoena I was questioned by the chairman on the subject of the employment by companies in which I am interested of persons who

Washington, February 7.—Tribute to the leadership of Woodrow Wilson in the cause of peace and his labors in connection with the relations between nations of the western hemisphere was paid by Secretary Hughes today in address, as chairman, at the monthly meeting of the governing board of the Pan-American union. The secretary expressed the appreciation of the United States government of the condolences extended on behalf of the Latin-American republics on the death of the former president.

"He has left an imperishable fame," Secretary Hughes said. "His leadership can never be forgotten by our people or other peoples in whose behalf he wrought in the cause of peace. I am sure that all Latin-American fully recognize the great worth of his labors in connection with the relations between the republics of this hemisphere."

On motion of Ambassador de Alencar of Brazil, the board adopted a resolution expressing their sense of loss at the death of Mr. Wilson and directing that the expression of sympathy be forwarded to Mrs. Wilson.

ONE DEAD, FIVE MAY DIE FROM EATING SAUSAGE

Steuersville, O., February 7.—One man is dead and five others are reported to be dying at the Ohio Valley hospital here, the result of eating spoiled sausage made from uncooked meat.

Paul Caropietti, aged 39, merchant, is dead. His death yesterday was at first thought to have been due to typhoid fever.

Later four other men who had been guests at a dinner at the Caropietti home Tuesday night were taken seriously ill and removed to the hospital, an investigation revealing that all were suffering from a similar ailment which was diagnosed as trichinosis, a worm disease that attacks the muscles.

Tales of Withdrawal Branded by Johnson As Cowardly Politics

Washington, February 7.—Senator Johnson, of California, formally denied tonight published reports that he soon is to withdraw from the race for the republican presidential nomination.

"The reports circulated about my withdrawal are, of course, untrue," he said. "They emanate from my opponents who, after manufacturing them, have the interest newspapers print them and editorialize concerning them. It's a contemptible and cowardly method of campaigning."

Max M. Cuba Elected Head of Commercial Alumni Association

Max M. Cuba was elected president of the Commercial High School Alumni association Thursday night at the annual reunion and banquet at the Peacock cafe. Elmer Hull was chosen vice president, and Miss Inez Pergant secretary-treasurer.

A chicken supper was served, and an enjoyable entertainment, consisting of songs and "stunts," was given. Five hundred dollars was raised to be used as the start of a fund to enable worthy but needy boys to attend school. Admissibility of granting a scholarship each year to a deserving promising pupil in the senior class also was discussed, but no action taken.

The association is planning a reunion for next spring, at which the 1924 graduating class will be entertained.

P. T. Sitz, 65, Dead.

Huntsville, Ala., February 7.—(Special.)—P. T. Sitz, 65, prominent citizen of New Market, died Wednesday at Maysville where he was visiting. His widow, two daughters, Mrs. Ray, of Winchester, Tenn., and Mrs. M. E. Albright, of Union Springs, Ala., and two sons, P. T. Sitz, Jr., of New Market, and J. H. Sitz, of Birmingham, survive him.

HENRY NORTON ENTERS CONTEST FOR SHERIFF

Henry J. Norton, head of Nathan Bedford Forrest Klan No. 1, and well known in Atlanta business and fraternal circles for 24 years, Thursday night definitely announced his candidacy for sheriff of Fulton county, subject to the democratic primary on March 19. This makes the third candidate in the field, Sheriff James L. Lowry and Chief of Police James L. Beavers having entered the contest some time ago.

Mr. Norton states that he is opposed to the fee system and suggests that the sheriff's salary be fixed by the board of county commissioners. He announces his intention to wage an intensive campaign and pledges himself to a "clean administration" of the office in event of election. He expects to announce a list of deputies during the next few days.

Mr. Norton is 36 years of age and until recently operated a bicycle and automobile tire business in this city. His announcement states that he is a "Baptist, Mason, Elk, Odd Fellow and a Klansman." It is his first experience in a campaign for public office, he stated.

DR. BOWDOIN HEADS CHILDREN'S SOCIETY

Dr. Joe P. Bowdoin, of Adairsville, was elected president of the Georgia Children's Home society for 1924 at the annual meeting of its membership in the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce Thursday afternoon. Dr. Bowdoin is well known in Georgia in connection with his health work for the national government, working through the state board of health. Dr. Bowdoin is also immediate past grand master of the Masonic order of the state.

Dr. Bowdoin has been an active member of the board of directors of the society during the past year. He succeeded Robert H. Jones, Jr., who served two terms.

The income, according to report of the auditor for 1923 was $22,174. The number of children coming under the different kinds of care of the society reached nearly a thousand.

The following officers and directors were chosen: Dr. Bowdoin, president; J. J. Shephard Bryan and Walter S. Dillon, vice presidents; Paul M. Coleman, secretary and chairman of the executive committee; Ernest A. Fowler, treasurer; J. Walter LeCraw, counselor, and Albert Howell, Jr., N. H. Ballard, Robert C. Cowan, R. L. Goodwin, B. Frank Bell, Arthur Norris, Francis Clarke, John Paschal, Charles N. Walker, Shephard Bryan, Firley Baum, Dr. Francis Jones, Herbert Finch, R. S. Pringle, James Belcher, George H. Fauss, Charles Gramling, H. G. Vorhis, A. E. McCann, Thornton P. Marie, Mrs. W. A. Albright, Mrs. W. F. Dykes, Mrs. J. M. High, Mrs. I. S. Hopkins, Mrs. R. S. Pringle, George Gershon, all of Atlanta; Lyman Yeeder, Cornelia W. T. Anderson, Macon; Judge W. E. Thomas, Valdosta; Joseph B. Cumming, Augusta; Lee Ehrhardt, Augusta; Cornelius Moses, Savannah; J. C. Bunn, Jr., Cedarhurst; Wilson Hardy, Rome, and W. H. Spear, Columbus, directors.

Technique Is Matter Of Training Of Brain, Not Muscular Habit

Technique, according to Fritz Kreisler, famous violinist, is almost purely a mental matter, and should be studied as such. Kreisler often has memorized a concerto on a violin, and given it little or no practice before playing it in concert, he says.

"Playing is like firing a pistol," Kreisler said. "You take aim; you cock the pistol; you put your finger on the trigger, give it a slight pressure, and the shot is fired. The same thing should apply to the technique on an instrument. You think before and not merely as after you fire the note. Your muscle is prepared, the physical conception is perfectly clear in your mind, a slight flash of will power and your effort is achieved. But to rely on muscular habit, as do so many, is fatal. A little fatigue, a little nervousness, a muscle bewildered and unable to direct itself, and where are you? Technique is a matter of brain."

Kreisler will appear in Atlanta February 12, under the auspices of the Southern Musical bureau. The heavy "tax" announced that the ticket sale will open at the Cable Piano company Saturday morning.

MRS. DONA BENNETT PROMINENT CHURCH WORKER DIES HERE

Mrs. Dona Adelle Bennett, 49, died Thursday morning at the residence, 632 Ponce de Leon avenue, following a short illness. She moved to Atlanta eight years ago from Dublin, Ala., where her family is now residing. She had been an active worker in church circles here, and was a member of the Woodward Avenue Baptist church. She is survived by two sons, R. G. and J. A. Bennett, of Atlanta; four daughters, Mrs. W. H. Reid, of Douglasville; Mrs. J. H. Clark and Misses Anne and Myrtle Bennett, of Atlanta; her mother, Mrs. R. D. West, of Clinton, S. C.; three brothers, M. F. West, of Macon; R. A. West, of Asheville, Ala.; and H. J. West, of Boaz, Ala.; and two sisters, Mrs. D. A. Timmons, of Clinton, and Mrs. T. E. McMahon, of Columbia.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon, with Avery & Lowndes in charge.

Third Baptist Pastor To Enter Field Work For Juvenile Groups

Dr. T. E. McCutcheon, pastor of the Third Baptist church, announced at the regular church conference Wednesday night that he could not reconsider his resignation, which he tendered recently. He urged the church to accept it, as he has made plans to enter field work for the Juvenile Protective Association of the South, with headquarters in Atlanta.

He received appointment to this office at an executive meeting of the association Tuesday.

For seven years Dr. McCutcheon was secretary and treasurer of the Appalachian association; for two years moderator of the Stone Mountain association, and under Dr. J. J. Bennett, former corresponding secretary and treasurer of the Georgia state mission board, was appointed one of the state evangelists. When the Atlanta association was organized he was elected superintendent of missions here.

Atlanta-Lowry Bank Merger Becomes Effective Monday

Merger of the Atlanta National Bank and the Lowry Bank and Trust Company of Georgia, under the name of the Atlanta and Lowry National Bank, will become effective next Monday, it was announced at a meeting held Thursday.

The new bank will have an invested capital of $1,000,000 and resources exceeding $1,000,000. Capital stock of the Atlanta and Lowry National Bank is $4,000,000, with surplus of $2,500,000 and undivided profits of $1,250,000.

The Trust Company of Georgia also will begin to function as a separate institution again on Monday, under the same ownership and general management as the banking institution. Its capital stock will total $2,000,000, with a surplus of $1,000,000 and undivided profits totaling $500,359.68.

Officers of Bank.
Main offices of the Atlanta and Lowry National Bank will be located in the Trust Company of Georgia building, at the corner of Edgewood and Pryor street, while branch banking offices will be maintained in the Atlanta National Bank building and the Piedmont hotel. The main office is now being entirely remodeled, and when this work is completed, it will be one of the most beautiful and up-to-date banking plants in the entire country.

The Trust Company of Georgia also will maintain a branch office in the Atlanta National Bank building.

The controller of the currency at Washington gave his full approval of the final action taken by the directors of the two institutions Thursday, it was stated. J. W. Pole, chief bank examiner from Washington, has been in attendance at a series of meetings of the stockholders and directors, which have worked out full details of the consolidation.

Officers of Bank.
Officers who will direct the affairs of the Atlanta and Lowry National Bank were elected by the directors at the Thursday meeting. The directors were named earlier by the stockholders of the two concerns. The officers chosen are as follows:

Chairman of the board, Robert E. Maddox.
President, Thomas K. Glenn.
Vice presidents: James S. Floyd, H. Warner Martin, George R. Donovan, Henry W. Davis, Thomas J. Peppers, Ernest A. Banker, J. S. Kennedy, James F. Alexander, K. B. Cunningham.

Cashier, Ernest W. Ranspock.
Controller, Dameron Black.
Assistant cashiers: D. R. DeSaussure, Harry W. Johnson, Leo Stillman, Ernest A. Banker, A. N. Anderson, G. C. Bradford, J. W. Smeek, R. C. Henderson, H. G. Walter, Miss Jay Spencer Knapp, Fred McSwain, G. P. Sasser.

Other Executives.
Messrs. Maddox and Glenn will be directors of the new bank.

FAMOUS DANCER AND HER TROUPE TO APPEAR HERE

Musical and cultural interest centers upon February 15 and 16, the time for the return to Atlanta after an absence from America of two years, of Anna Pavlova, distinguished danseuse and her ballet Russe. She will give three programs. Representatives of the Russian artist have completed with Manager Lewis Hays of the Atlanta theater, all arrangements for the program.

Pavlova opened her American tour at the Manhattan Opera house, New York, in a fortnight's engagement, upon which occasion every one of her 16 performances was entirely sold out. She brought her entire Paris and London organization to this country following her successes at Covent Garden.

Everywhere in America she and her troupe have been received with great acclaim. Noteworthy features of Pavlova's organization are the orchestral section of 25, under direction of Theodore Steir, and corps de ballet of 40. There are some 20 principal stars in her supporting cast, including Novikoff, premier danseur.

POLICE CAPTURE FUGITIVE AS CAR RUNS INTO POLE

Arthur Baley, who gave his address as 319 East Fair street, is held by the police as a suspect in connection with recent burglaries.

He was arrested just before daybreak Thursday morning by Patrolman E. W. Williams and H. Taylor at DeKalb avenue and Krog street after a chase of many blocks.

The machine, in which Baley was being driven, was checked and arrested at a pole at Krog street. In the back of the car was found a quantity of groceries and other articles, it is said.

STAR IN THE EAST PLANS TO PRESENT SERVICES SUNDAY

The Order of the Star in the East will present a beautiful and impressive ritualistic service at 8 o'clock

MISS BERTHA GIBSON.
One of the participants in the ceremonial to be presented by the Order of the Star in the East Sunday night.

Sunday night at the Liberal Christian church, 301 West Peachtree street.

The parent order was founded on January 11, 1911, and was representative in every country while the Atlanta organization, of which Mrs. Clara Lambert is secretary, was organized in 1917.

The organization has grown through the expectation of the coming in the near future of a great spiritual teacher. That feeling, the members state, is prevalent in many parts of the world, and this Order of the Star in the East was formed with the object of uniting, as far as possible, that expectation, wherever and in whatever form it exists, in preparation for the coming of the expected teacher.

Poor Salesmanship
Causes New Products
On Market To Fail

F. A. Wilson-Lawson, of The Georgia chamber of commerce, addressed the chamber of commerce Thursday afternoon on marketing problems. He declared that most of the new products placed on the market each year fail because of poor selling methods.

He said advertising is the major factor in operation, and that the demand should be created through advertising rather than wait for the demand, as was the old theory.

He declared Atlanta is a great distributing center and should be created into a great industrial center as well.

J. M. HOLLOWELL SPEAKS FEB. 26 IN NEW ORLEANS

The annual convention of the Southern Metal Trades association will be held in New Orleans February 26 and 27, preceding the opening of Mardi Gras. J. M. Hollowell, of Atlanta, treasurer of the association, will be one of the principal speakers.

Dr. Enrique Tonedo, one of the leading men in engineering societies, also will be present.

GRAND OPERA PLEDGES NOW TOTAL $126,750

Despite the fact that Atlanta's guarantee of $125,000 for the 1924 season of Metropolitan grand opera was oversubscribed at the first of this week, guarantee cards continue to come into the offices of the Atlanta Music Festival association. An additional list of guarantors given out Thursday shows a total of $126,750 now pledged.

Many persons, undoubtedly, wish to be included in the list of guarantors, both to have a part in supporting this event and because of the privilege of first selection of seats. All who desire may be placed on the list on application for guarantor's card to Colonel W. L. Peel, chairman of the board of directors.

The list of guarantors given out Thursday was:

Previously reported $125,750

Date Has Not Been Set For Hearing of Appeal From Decision on Beavers

No date has been set for hearing on the bill of exceptions to the recent decision of Judge W. D. Ellis, barring the trial of Chief of Police James L. Beavers on charges of inefficiency, which was filed Wednesday in Fulton superior court as a basis for an appeal to the Georgia supreme court for a ruling on the question of the right of the police committee to try Beavers. The bill was filed by Jesse W. Armstrong, of the police committee.

It was alleged that Judge Ellis was in error in holding that the appeal filed against the chief amounted to an "adjudication" which the committee intended to put into effect if Beavers did not avail himself of the opportunity to disprove the charges.

Other members of the police committee of council made it plain Thursday that Mr. Armstrong was alone in his appeal to the supreme court. The purpose of pursuing the "hands off" policy until Chief Beavers had ample time as "chief in fact" to demonstrate his ability was reiterated by police committee.

Tech Night School Has More Students Than in First Term

Second term registration in the Tech Evening School of Commerce will exceed last year's record enrollment, Professor Neil M. Lewis predicted Thursday.

A class in the theory of accounts, which meets two nights a week will hold its second meeting Friday night. Classes which meet for the first time for the new term will be journalism, business administration and the old class in theory of accounts.

WILSON ELECTED TO HEAD FLORAL TOURNAMENT CLUB

John Wilson, local florist, was elected president of the Atlanta floral tournament society at a meeting last night at the Ansley hotel. Other officers named were: First vice president, J. W. Waldrup; second vice president, J. H. Pearson; secretary, J. A. Brooks; treasurer, Fred E. Minor.

The society was recently organized to promote a rose show, similar to President's Tournament of Roses, in Atlanta in June. The organization is striving to obtain a membership of 1,000, with the idea of having each member grow roses to be used in the carnival. There is a possibility that the flowers will not be available for a show this year, and a meeting has been set for March 3, at which time it will be definitely decided whether or not the initial show will be held this year or in 1925.

STAR IN THE EAST PLANS TO PRESENT SERVICES SUNDAY

The Order of the Star in the East will present a beautiful and impressive ritualistic service at 8 o'clock

Sunday night at the Liberal Christian church, 301 West Peachtree street.

The parent order was founded on January 11, 1911, and was representative in every country while the Atlanta organization, of which Mrs. Clara Lambert is secretary, was organized in 1917.

The organization has grown through the expectation of the coming in the near future of a great spiritual teacher. That feeling, the members state, is prevalent in many parts of the world, and this Order of the Star in the East was formed with the object of uniting, as far as possible, that expectation, wherever and in whatever form it exists, in preparation for the coming of the expected teacher.

Few people who have the price are going to pass up the last three opportunities of Atlanta to see "Happiness," the play that "charmed the world" with the sweetness and gentle optimism of its message to humankind.

Miss Isabelle Love is playing the character of Jenny, the girl sprung from poverty who leads poor and rich alike into the heaven of happiness. The play has its laughs, its heart tugs and its few tears, but above all it has inspiration in generous portions for all who see it and understand its message of happiness.

Next week the players will present the most delicious comedy of young people.

Each is of that higher quality of entertainment that usually is associated with perfection of the performance in their various lines of amusement.

First and foremost, perhaps, are the Lyric brothers, black-faced comedians, singers and politicians. They offer a side-splitting line of patter and close their number with a popular song.

Then there is Wilfred Herrick and little Dean Hart and their very worthwhile and amusingly successful "Cloning."

Oakes and DeLour and Jane Moore offer a colorful and talented diversion in dancing as the closing number. Miss Moore is a very graceful performer in the terpsichorean art and more.

ATLANTA PHYSICIANS TO ATTEND CONGRESS

A large number of Atlanta physicians are expected to attend the week of medical demonstrations, beginning in St. Louis, February 18, under the auspices of the American Congress on Internal Medicine. The congress represents the non-surgical group of the profession and more than two thousand internists will attend the series of meetings, it is said here.

Former meetings of the congress have been held in Rochester, N. Y., Philadelphia, Chicago and other leading medical centers. St. Louis, local physicians point out, is one of the country's greatest medical centers.

Twenty-five hospitals in St. Louis will offer special clinics on a wide range of medical subjects, it is said. These clinics will be given by the best of the profession to give these many cases first-hand study in the presence of complete records of each case. These clinics will be visited by the members of the congress, and information reaching Atlanta physicians will be of great value.

General sessions will be held in the Chase hotel, headquarters of the congress, and information reaching Atlanta physicians will be of great value.

The American Congress on Internal Medicine has for its object the dissemination of the new developments in medicine. It claims a high place in the interest and that the full responsibility in diagnosis and treatment of the patient should lie with him.

The American College of Physicians and Surgeons is a body of members selected from the ranks of the American Congress on Internal Medicine. Membership in this college entitles the holder to the title of Fellow of the American College of Physicians. The college meets with the congress.

Albert D. Maier, prominent Atlanta business man, and a brother of H. A. Maier, of the firm of Maier & Berke, died suddenly Wednesday night at his home where he had gone on a business trip. He had been traveling agency for the National Paper company for 20 years, and was standing in front of the store of one of his clients, the National Paper company, when he was struck by a car. He was taken to the hospital, but died before medical assistance could be summoned.

Maier was born in Atlanta 67 years ago, and resided here all his life. He was a member of the Royal Arcanum, and of the Palestine Lodge No. 456, Free and Accepted Masons.

Funeral services will be held Friday morning from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Barnett Kenner, 82 Hunt street, and interment will be in Oakland cemetery.

He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Kenner, Mrs. Hurt Fowles and Mrs. Robert Tatum, all of Atlanta; a son, H. A. Maier, of the Carolina Telephone and Telegraph company, of Kingston, S. C., and a brother, H. A. Maier, of Atlanta.

SHIVERS AWAIT THOSE WHO RISE IN EARLY MORN

It probably will be a few degrees below the freezing point when Atlanta shivers roll out their headclothes this morning, according to Forecaster C. F. von Hermann. The low point of the thermometer on Thursday morning was 24 degrees below zero, but the weather man predicted—

Friday, however, will see a marked rise in temperature. The middle of the day will be comparatively warm and clear, and the city will be at least several days of real spring weather ahead, unless something unexpected happens.

In fact, said Mr. von Hermann, it is about time to be thinking of genuine spring weather.

Miss Alice Mynatt, Invalid 27 Years, Dies at Residence

Miss Alice Wallace Mynatt, 46 years old, died Thursday morning at her home, 56 West Fifteenth street. She had been invalid for 27 years, but her condition was not regarded as serious until a few days prior to her death.

Miss Mynatt was a member of a pioneer Atlanta family, and had resided in this city all her life. She was a daughter of the late Colonel David M. Mynatt, prominent Atlanta attorney, and a granddaughter of Major Campbell Wallace, first chairman of the railroad commission of Georgia.

Funeral services will be held from the residence at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon, with interment in Oakland cemetery. Services will be in charge of Dr. J. Spore Lyons, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and Dr. Richard Orme Flynn, pastor of the First Methodist church.

Miss Mynatt is survived by a brother, Joseph L. Mynatt, of Atlanta; two aunts, Mrs. Charles J. Martin, of Atlanta, and Mrs. E. J. Ginn, of Danville, Va.; and a uncle, Charles B. Wallace, Sr., of Atlanta.

MRS. GEORGE KENDALL DIES AT N. Y. HOME

Mrs. George Kendall, former Atlanta woman, died Wednesday at her home in New York, according to word received by relatives here. The funeral will be held at Rochester.

Mrs. Kendall, who was formerly Miss Lily Tuller, moved from this city to New York City several years ago. She was a daughter of the late William H. Tuller, who was for many years cashier of the Atlanta Cotton Mills. When in Atlanta, she was a member of the North Avenue Presbyterian church. She was also prominent here socially.

She is survived by a son, Tad Kendall, of New York; a daughter, Miss Lily Tuller, of New York; a nephew, Charles Tuller, and a niece, Mrs. William Perrin Nicholson, Jr., of Atlanta.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR ROBINSON HELD

Funeral services for Thomas A. Robinson, who died Wednesday at his home, 528 South Boulevard, following an illness of a week, were held yesterday morning from the church of Barclay and Brandon, Rev. C. J. Barth officiated.

Mr. Robinson was chief clerk and secretary of the southern department of the American Book company, having been connected with the concern for 25 years. Previous to that time he had been connected with the D. Appleton & Company.

THIS JOHN HULSEY WAS NOT ARRESTED

John W. New York, February 7.—There was a severe break in the cotton market here today, with May contracts selling off from 34.35 to 33.48, or 77 points net lower and 149 points on the advance of last Monday's closing deliveries.

The market opened steady at a decline of 1 to 4 points on all months except December, which was 5 points higher. Liverpool made a relatively easy showing but the initial offerings were quite readily absorbed, and the market stiffened up several points after the close on covering. Buying which was supposed to represent price fixing for the trade, March rallied to 34.15 and July to 32.55, making an advance of 7 to 11 points, while the new crop sold about 5 to 12 points net higher.

Offerings increased at these figures while there was a moderate slight rally during the middle of the day on rumors of bullish private figures on domestic consumption for January, the market weakened again in the late trading. March sold off to 33.39 and July to 32.05, making net declines of 75 to 71 points. New crop months were expected to be steady, but October declined to 28.05 and December to 27.05, or 22 to 28 points net lower. The close was with a few points of the week.

The afternoon selling movement seemed to be promoted by reports of continued demand for cotton in the domestic market, including advice from North street to the effect that nothing better than a hand-to-mouth market was likely to develop. New crop should get an unfavorable start. There were also unconfirmed rumors that spot cotton was being offered at a little freely in the interior, which may have contributed to the late decline. Private cables reported a quiet market in Liverpool.

EAST TONE

AT NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, February 7.—Prominent declines followed in cotton today after a slightly higher opening in the early session. Better cables than the brought advances of 5 to 10 points after the close on a strong tool possession of fluctuations, price long ground in a small way until well into the afternoon. The late trading brought real weakness and declines to levels 31 to 77 points under the close of yesterday, lowest prices being reached in the closing range. The late sale of March closed at 33.30, and of October at 27.50.

The main reason for the decline appeared to be disappointment on the long side over the failure of any genuine improvement to take place in domestic cotton markets. Accounts received from the interior and from the south were not encouraging, and the spot department that the country was offering spots in a more liberal way. The English cloth labor troubles were a factor in the decline and were still being talked of around mid-session. The weakness of the afternoon was due to the throwing overboard of long contracts in a large way.

New York, February 7.—Marked irregularity developed in today's bond market as the prospective flood of new financing, involving a possible total of $150,000,000 for the Japanese loan, and temporary stiffness of call money rates exercised a restraining effect on prices.

Moving counter to the general trend, however, Mexican government bonds continued to rally, the gains recorded in a two-point gain. Reports that the government was making initial payments of 1924 bond interest, combined with the favorable turn in the market, caused a rally in these securities. Rumors also persisted that negotiations for a large loan to Mexico, suspended upon the outbreak of the revolution, had been resumed.

High grade railroad bonds encountered selling today for the first time since the early part of the week, but rather factors are at work that would favor an advance, as the selling of today and yesterday's offerings, in view of the fact that it is generally believed that there is considerable selling of new issues in the market. New York, February 7.—Reactionary price tendencies prevailed in today's irregular stock market which was called upon to absorb another large volume of offerings in addition to the rather extensive offerings of bear operators.

Late selling was inspired by the announcement that President Coolidge had ordered an investigation of gas line prices, and the heavy calling of loans by out-of-town banks, apparent in preparation for the repayment of treasury funds to the federal reserve bank.

Steel shares developed temporary strength in reflection of reports that January production had shown the first increase since last June and that mill operations were expanding, but the gains were reduced by a rally in the market. United States Steel common touched 109 or within 5-8 of the high established in March of last year, but it dropped to 104.50, Standard Oil of New York to 104.50, and Gulf States to 104.50.

High grade railroad bonds encountered selling today for the first time since the early part of the week, but rather factors are at work that would favor an advance, as the selling of today and yesterday's offerings, in view of the fact that it is generally believed that there is considerable selling of new issues in the market. HEARTS AFIRE

BY MAY CHRISTIE

The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

INSTALLMENT 41

Prudence buried off the glittering white satin gown that had proved her own undoing.

Hateful, hateful garment! White, emblem of innocence! White, of un-sullied reputation! What irony of fate had prompted that she wear that frock tonight?

Like Cinderella after the ball, she found herself once more in her simple cotton gown, and flying from the scene of her humiliation.

"I'm telephoning the garage for the limousine. Just wait a moment."

Prudence didn't even hear her hostess's words. She ran like a deer possessed, through the wide hallway and out into the hot, still night. Oh, for covering darkness, to hide her misery and shame!

How could they think her guilty? How could they stare at her with bold, unfriendly and condemning eyes, when never in the whole course of her young life had she done a mean or dishonest act?

She sobbed aloud as she ran down the long carriage-drive, flanked on both sides by Lombardy poplars, just like sentinels. They, too, seemed to be watching her, stern, unforgiving.

"I must get away, away!" she cried, mind reeling. Oh, to leave this neighborhood forever! Oh, to hide her head in some quiet spot where no one in the world could ever find her!

"It will break mother's heart, this," she thought, as she fled.

"Oh, Daddy, Mother baked a cake today!"

"Wait till you see it—raised way up high—with thick icing all over it—and mother says I can have two pieces—it won't hurt me 'cause she used Calumet Baking Powder."

Mother is right—things made with Calumet are always raised to their full nutritional value—they are invariably wholesome and pure. No flat bakings that mean indigestion—nothing harmful to children when you use

CALUMET

The Economy BAKING POWDER

It contains more than the ordinary leavening strength—one spoonful does the work of two spoonfuls of many other brands, that's one reason it's economical.

A pound can of Calumet contains full 16 ounces. Some baking powders come in 12 ounce cans instead of 16 ounce cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it.

prudence stopped at Blackthorn Junction at eleven-fifteen. Blackthorn Junction was four miles away, if one journeyed by road, but a short cut through the woods almost halved the distance.

Had she sufficient courage to traverse the lonely woods so late, and all alone?

It required less courage than did waking tomorrow at Green Gables, to this tragedy!

By running rapidly, she drew near her home before ten-thirty. Mother was in bed, and the light in her room extinguished. Father was at a concert in the village, and wouldn't be back till after eleven, at the earliest.

Prudence crept in very quietly, and found the temporary haven of her own room.

She must act quickly. Her brain was numb with pain, but her one blind instinct was to run away and hide, far from her enemies, and alike far from those she loved.

She slipped out of her thin frock, and donned a plain shirt-bodice and a neat coat and skirt. The moonlight was her sole illumination. Should she light her candles, their beam would shine through the windows to her mother's room, and if the latter wasn't sleeping, she would discover at once to inquire why her daughter was back so early from the party?

In the vague light Prudence couldn't find her gloves. What did they matter? She was going—here a bitter smile trembled at her mouth—she was going to no social function!

Twenty dollars—her worldly all!—lay in a little locked box on her bureau. She would need every cent of it.

"It will keep me for a week or two, if I don't find work at once," she thought, slipping the bills into her handbag.

Then she sat down to write a letter to her mother. Her tears dropped upon that letter, but she did not stop to wipe them off. Not a moment dare she be lost in getting far away. She simply couldn't face tomorrow morning.

Once or twice she started, listening, thinking she heard a movement in the house.

But the ensuing silence reassured her.

Then, very quietly, she crept down the stairs, and out into the moonlit night, running in haste across the fields and through the woods that led to Blackthorn Junction.

Panting, a sharp pain in her side, she sighted the railroad track at last. How awful if she missed the express!

As she ran, she dragged a five-dollar bill from her handbag, wherewith to buy her ticket, and as she reached the depot, the train was already in.

"Quick, miss! Just in time!" a porter hurried her into a coach, wondering what such a pretty girl was doing all alone at this time of the night.

So away went Prudence on her solitary flight, clutching a few quarters from the purchase of her ticket in her right hand, her shabby handbag in her left, and a small attache case on the seat beside her.

She opened her handbag to see if her remaining stock-in-trade—fifteen dollars—were safe. Good gracious! Her heart leapt to her throat as she counted feverishly, finally turning everything that the little bag contained out on the seat.

And then the startling truth came home to her! When she had dragged the five dollars out, somewhere near the railroad station, the remaining bills had slipped out, too, and they were gone!

Commercial High Students Present Two Plays Tonight

The Dramatic club of Commercial High school will make its debut tonight, presenting two one-act plays in the High school auditorium. Booth Tarkington's "The Trusting Place" and Alice Gerstenberg's "The Unseen" will be given by senior members of the club. In this picture Miss Evelyn Levinson and Keister Reede are shown in a scene in "The Trusting Place." The entertainment will begin at 8:15 o'clock.

TAFT IS MAKING RAPID RECOVERY

Washington, February 7.—Chief Justice Taft was said to have made rapid progress today toward complete recovery from the attack of indigestion which prevented him from attending the funeral of former President Woodrow Wilson. Although he remained in bed, he did not refrain from work, dictating considerable correspondence and giving attention to his judicial duties.

SENATE PUBLISHES GERMAN TRADE PACT

Washington, February 7.—After further opposition to the treaty of commerce and the amity with Germany had been voiced today in the senate foreign relations committee the senate at the request of Chairman Lodge took the somewhat unusual step of making it public in advance of a report by the committee.

Chief opposition to the treaty centers around "most favored nation" clauses which, it is argued, will retard development of the American merchant marine by restricting freedom of action by the United States in imposing lower tariff duties on goods imported from American ships than on those brought by ships under other flags.

Opponents of these clauses have laid stress on the action of congress in 1920 in placing in the Shipping Act a provision directing the president to abrogate similar provisions in existing treaties of commerce.

President Wilson declined to comply as did President Harding and so far President Coolidge has taken no action.

The "most favored nation" clauses in the pending treaty are said to be typical of those contemplated for commercial treaties now in negotiation or in prospect with a number of other powers as a part of the plan of the administration for modernizing parts in the light of changed conditions since the world war. These sections in the treaty with Germany guarantee most favored treatment in respect to the movement of commerce, navigation facilities, the levying of duties on imports and similar subjects.

Provisions in this connection which have come under fire in the foreign relations committee declare that the persons, ships and merchandise of neither contracting power will suffer imposition or duties or other restrictions greater than "the most favored nation."

Other sections give to the nationals of each country the right to enter, travel and reside, and to engage in any sort of legal industry upon payment of ordinary taxes imposed in the country; assure freedom of entry into every open port except the restriction of American coastal trade is recognized; and provides for the exchange of consular representatives and their privileges and duties.

As in the case of most such treaties, it is to run for ten years.

On February 12, 1924, Waterman's Ideal Fountain Pen celebrates its Fortieth Birthday and Forty Years of continuous leadership in prestige and sales.

The first Waterman's Ideal had a rubber barrel and every Waterman's Ideal made today has a rubber barrel.

40 years of experience has proven that rubber is the only proper material for the purpose.

8 separate operations are required to make a perfect gold point.

40 years of experience confirms that it cannot be done in less and that more are unnecessary.

To fit every individual preference in points, it requires over 1000 different styles, shapes, sizes and tempers.

40 years of experience has demanded that we make them in this wide variety.

No one can write comfortably with a barrel that is too large or too small to be a perfect fit for the hand.

40 years of experience has enabled us to produce the variety of sizes necessary to fit any hand comfortably.

Waterman dealers the world over have learned these facts also, and will gladly aid you in selecting a

Dance at Club This Evening Will Be Brilliant Affair

What promises to be one of the most delightful affairs ever given at the Atlanta Woman's club will be the dance to be given this Friday evening by the members of the banquet hall insurance group of the club, of which Mrs. Capen Andrews is chairman.

This party will be held in its nature, the entire proceeds to go to the club, and besides dancing and bridge playing, many novelty features have been arranged for the entertainment of the guests and a good time is promised every one who attends.

Mrs. Paul Turner, chairman of arrangements, will be assisted by the following committee: Mrs. J. L. Wheeler, Mrs. Bonita Crowe and Mrs. W. B. Swint, having charge of the refreshments; Mrs. Lettice Davis with Mrs. W. L. Russell will have charge of the candy booth; Mrs. P. C. Fable with Mrs. Hunter Smith will have charge of the fortune telling booth. The reception committee is composed of the entire membership of the banquet hall insurance group.

The chaperons for the dance will be Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Howard McCutcheon, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Freeman, Dr. and Mrs. J. A. G. Erwin, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Poole, Mr. and Mrs. Newton Wing, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Hugely, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Thwaiter, Mr. and Mrs. Cleve Webb, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. John Hornaday, Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Moore, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Mount, Mrs. Price.

Atlanta Girl Scouts Will Receive Golden Eagle Award

The first two Girl Scouts in Atlanta to win the Golden Eagle award, the highest award in scouting for girls, will receive their badges on Saturday, February 9, at the chamber of commerce at 2 p. m.

Scout Edna Karston, of Troop 18, and Scout Elizabeth Skeen, of Troop 2, Decatur, are eligible to a honor. The badges will be presented by Miss Dorris Hough, regional director for the southeastern states, who has made a special trip to Atlanta for this occasion.

First-class badge will be presented to Scout Dorothy Springer, and a medal of merit to Scout Dorothy Le Harve, both of Troop 2, Decatur. In addition, proficiency badges will be

Flonzaley Concert Tickets Will Be On Sale Today

Tickets will be on sale for the concert of the Flonzaley quartet all day Friday, beginning at 9 o'clock at the Cable Piano company. Officials of the music club will be in charge. Today will be the only opportunity to secure seats downtown, and those who do not secure them at that time will purchase them at the door at the hour of the concert.

All ticket holders are urged to note the change in hour of the recital. Due to the inability of the musicians to reach Atlanta for a matinee performance, the concert will be held at 8:30 in the evening at the auditorium of the Atlanta Woman's club.

Two classes of tickets will be on sale Friday. The first will admit to any seat in the house, and are priced at $2. The second admit to five rows of specially reserved seats in the balcony, which have been set aside for music students and others who are unable to afford the more expensive seats. These will be sold for $1.25.

Box Will Be Awarded For Largest Ticket Sale to "Only 38"

A box seating eight persons will be offered to the member selling the largest number of tickets to "Only 38," the comedy-drama, by A. E. Thomas, which the Little Theater Guild of Atlanta will present in the auditorium-theater of the Atlanta Woman's club Friday evening, February 15.

The admission to orchestra seats for this performance will be $1, but all students will be admitted for half price.

Assuming the lead, that of the girls role, is Miss Anna Belle Horn, director of dramatic work for the Girls' High school, who is a reader of note and has wide experience in dramatic work.

The play is directed by W. B. Atchison and promises to be one of the brightest of the theater guild's productions. In addition to Miss Horn its cast includes a number of Atlanta's most talented amateur actors and actresses, many of whom have received previous training under Mrs. Earl Sherwood Jackson, the president of the guild, who has directed the most notable dramatic productions which have been presented in the city.

School of Health To Meet Sunday

At the regular meeting of the School of Health Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock the school will present as the lecturer, Arthur A. Poissant, of Toronto, a noted psychologist and truth student.

Mr. Poissant will also speak on February 17. On February 24 Cora French Williams, of Rochester, N. Y., a lecturer from the Unity School of Practical Christianity will speak. Robert Bryan Harrison, director of the school, will preside at all the meetings and extend an invitation to the public to attend.

Miss Sue Bucknell Is Complimented At Party Series

Miss Sue Bucknell, whose marriage to Dixon Bayard Porter will be a prominent event in society on Tuesday afternoon, was the central figure at two delightful affairs Thursday.

Mrs. Reuben Arnold was hostess at a bridge-tennis afternoon at her home on Pace's Ferry road, in compliment to Miss Bucknell.

The spacious rooms where the guests were received were beautifully decorated by a profusion of pastel-colored spring flowers. In the dining room the table, handsomely appointed, was adorned with a silver bowl of lovely pink roses, and surrounding this were silver candelabra holding pink unshaded tapers and alternating with bouquets of mints.

Miss Emmie Nixon entertained at breakfast at the Piedmont Driving club complimenting this charming bride-elect.

The handsomely-appointed table, placed in the blue room of the club, was covered with an exquisite lace cloth and forming the centerpiece was a large Wedgwood bowl of fragrant spring blossoms, including Dresden shaded sweetpeas, with yellow jonquils predominating. Placed at intervals were small Wedgwood bowls of these lovely flowers. The dainty hand-painted place cards were suggestive of a wedding.

Covers were placed for the members of the bridal party.

P-T. A. To Organize Mothers' Circle

The pre-school committee of the P. T. A. will organize a mothers' circle at the school on Friday, February 8, at 3 o'clock.

VITAL FACTS FOR WOMEN

Sooner or later almost every woman is brought face to face with the fact that she is a victim of some weakness or ailment peculiar to her sex. It may be the young woman suffering from pain or irregularities, a mother who has brought on some weakness or displacement from overwork, or the middle aged woman passing through the most critical period of her life. For each of these trying periods Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has proven the greatest boon ever given to women, and there are women living in every town and city in the country who testify to its value.—(adv.)

S., will give a box supper immediately after their business meeting in their clubroom in the Forsyth building on Friday, February 15, to which friends, not members of the order, as well as Eastern Stars, will be welcomed. These attending will bring lunches. It will also be a stent night. The worthy patron, Mr. Coleman, promises one of his enjoyable lectures in a dietician's evening of fun and pleasure is assured those who attend.

Church P-T. A.

To Meet Tonight.

The Parent-Teacher association of St. Paul church will have a meeting Friday night, February 8, in the P. O. B. room at 5 o'clock.

Professor W. L. Sutton will be the speaker of the evening. A large attendance is desired. All the mothers of the church are urged to be present.

Dr. Loveridge Points Truths in Lecture Series

"Help your child to find his own realization of truth, purity, unselfishness; to control his own marvelous spontaneity, by leading him to an understanding of the God-Father dwelling with him," is in essence the message which Dr. Blanche Grosbeck Loveridge gave to an interested audience of mothers who assembled at St. Mark's Methodist church, Wednesday morning, for the opening lecture of the new series which is being offered through Circle 7.

The second lecture will be given in the Sunday school room, at 11 o'clock, Friday morning, February 8, when Dr. Loveridge will discuss the very stimulating and practical subject of "Christ in the Child." Dr. Loveridge's hearers are continuously expressing their gratitude to her for her inspiring presentation of the wonderfully close correlation of mental and spiritual activity with every day life.

"It's an absolute fact," said one mother, "for I have tried just what she says with my children, and it has worked every time. Every mother should know and understand it."

Mrs. Spencer L. Atkinson, chairman of the circle, requests that all those attending will please use the Fifth street entrance. She announces further that single tickets may be had for 75 cents, but that four admissions to any one lecture may be secured for $2. All lectures begin at 11 o'clock and the third and fourth of this series will be given next week, Wednesday, February 13, and Friday, February 15. The first fifteen minutes of the hour are devoted to answering questions on the subjects which have been presented.

Mrs. Atkinson states that Dr. Loveridge is glad to take this time to clear up any perplexities which may arise as one attempts to formulate one's own personal application of these great principles which Dr. Loveridge has presented in her lectures.

Supper will be served at 6:30 by Mrs. Clayton Berry's circle.

Why do you eat Bran?

TO FIGHT CONSTIPATION—the most dangerous condition your system can become chained to—to get free from biliary, dull headaches, nausea—etc., etc.!!!

Did yourself of this dangerous condition—or start "slipping" and become a prey to any one of the most dreaded human ailments which have their beginning with constipation and toxic poisoning!

Fight constipation as you would fight fire! Fight it with bran—Kellogg's Bran—BECAUSE IT IS ALL BRAN! Don't temporize! Don't waste time and health by going half-way! You need ALL BRAN; you need the bulk, the "roughage" of ALL BRAN, because it sweeps, cleanses and purifies!

REALIZE THIS—foods with a part bran content can only relieve constipation in proportion to the amount of bran they contain! If they are 25 or 50 per cent bran—you may get 25 or 50 per cent relief!

REMEMBER THIS—Kellogg's Bran is ALL BRAN and is guaranteed to give you positive and permanent relief if you will eat two table-spoonfuls daily, or as much with each meal in chronic cases!

Don't delay; don't fuss with half-way measures! You have too much at stake! All grocers sell—

Featuring the First Full-Fashioned Silk Stockings Since 1914

To Sell $1
At

Yesterday the selling started. Six thousand pairs went on sale. The Hosiery Section was crowded—thronged—all day long. For this is the first time since 1914 that a full-fashioned silk stocking has been produced to sell for $1.

For years hosiery manufacturers have been trying to perfect a stocking like this, but to no avail. The finished stockings cost so much to produce that a full-fashioned silk stocking couldn't be procured for less than $1.50—and then only on occasions.

But now, after years of striving, the great Burson Mills have produced this full-fashioned silk stocking to sell at $1—and High's has been selected as the Atlanta store to distribute it.

This Hosiery Is Perfect!

And this is a beautiful stocking, really! The silk is finely woven—the texture is clear and flawless. Being full-fashioned, it fits neatly at the ankle and widens gracefully toward the top. And it is Silk to the Knee!

The top is made of strong mercerized lisle yarn, doubled to withstand the strain of garter clasps. The foot is fashioned to fit by the VEE WEAVE without knots and without a seam across the toe. The heel is strongly reinforced. And it is to be had in the wanted colors.

The Coat of Spring Is Doubly Appealing

Through Unusual Smartness of Style And Its Many Practical Uses

For the chill winds of the spring months, for summer nights and for motoring, the spring coat is quite essential—and, too, it will be worn quite late into the fall season.

Our sketch shows a striking model of soft Juina cloth in poppy color, trimmed in wide bands of platinum grey with collar of platinum fox.

Very Smart Styles

Never before has such striking originality of design been offered in coats. The variety of the models offered here is truly a delight.

The Loose Swagger Coat is an ultra-smart model shown in imported English novelty weaves of beautiful colorings, big plaids and stripes, and quite stunning two-tone effects of Flamingo cloth and other novelties.

Collars are of self material or of fur.

The Three-Quarter Coat is a very popular spring model of long straight lines and many charming models are shown in Charmeen, Twill Cord, Charminette and other attractive fabrics.

Some show quite unusual trimmings of braids and ribbons with self collars and some are fur trimmed.

Soft Pile Fabrics are very much used in solid colors and in novelty plaid and camel's hair effects. Models are self collared or trimmed in furs.

The Silk Coat

Nothing more charming in style has ever been seen than some of these new silk coats and capes.

A three-quarter model in black moire has a wide attached scarf with long ends trimmed in very wide bands of snowy ermine.

Reversible Silk Capes of knitted fabrics are strikingly pretty—made with standing collar of summer ermine—to be worn with either side out. Such attractive combinations as black and white, black and jade, brown and tan, navy and grey.

Black and White has a distinct vogue in coats, as well as in dresses, this season. Many of the most distinctive models shown are in black and white silk—moire, satin, or knitted fabric—and in the various soft woolen materials also.

The Spring Colors are as delightful and varied as the styles—poppy, copper, Bengal, Lysheen, Louisette, and other high shades, in addition to the smart blacks and navies, and more subdued shades such as oatmeal, bran, rubber, Gypsy, artichoke, grey and others.

Especially Attractive Showing at $25 and $35

Other Models $49.50 to $198.50

The Great Moment

BY ELINOR GLYN

Then when the bandage was finished, he settled her once more on the bed. And now she seemed to fall into a drugged sleep. By this time the sun had set, and the short twilight of rosy crimson pervaded the room.

Bayard sat down and watched. Nadine began to toss restlessly in about half an hour, and darkness fell upon the place.

He got up and lit the lamp, and wound up the little cheap clock on the table by his watch; it was eight o'clock. Sir Edward and the rest would have begun to wonder what could have become of them by now. He went back to the bed; the strain he had suffered was telling a little, he felt tired now that his anxiety was lessened. A sip of whisky would have been a very nice thing; but he must not waste a drop of it. She would have to have some more, if this amount did not seem to be producing a lasting effect. He was hungry too. But he and often been in situations of real hardship, and it never entered his head that he had now any wants or needs.

His whole mind was fixed upon the sleeping girl.

One crisp black curl lay over on the pillow; he touched it reverently with his fingers. Even in her heavy sleep she seemed conscious of his nearness, for a half smile stole over her lips for an instant. He had a strong desire to lift her into his arms, and let her sleep on his breast, or rock and soothe her like a baby; but he must not take advantage of the situation to gratify any of his own desires.

So, hour after hour, he sat there, moaning sometimes, and from time to time he willed the bandage on her forehead to go to the door to look out for him.

He did not draw the cheap checked cotton curtains over the two windows—better that he should see her, even if by some fortunate chance help should come.

Not a sound could be heard, except an occasional faint rustle, as some reptile or lizard passed among the brush. The stars were very bright, and a crescent moon had just arisen in the east.

The little clock struck half-past two. Nadine had been sleeping more peacefully in the last quarter of an hour, and Bayard sat down in the chair by the writing table and rested his head in his hands. He had almost slipped into a deep, unconscious sleep for a second, when he was aroused by a movement on the bed. Was Nadine awakening? He went to her, but she had sunk back again.

All the top of her sleeve was wrinkled away, her blouse was very disordered, but there were hardly any blood marks.

Her round young throat gleamed ivory against the dark throat pillow. The fine lines and pale pink crepe-de-chine of her under-bodice just showed where the blouse was torn open, and all the beautiful neck was bare.

A bright flush was in her cheeks now. Even in this unnatural sleep, she was utterly attractive to the young mining engineer.

He sat down beside her, and now began clearly to think.

What would this sister adventure mean in the working of fate?

Would it draw them nearer, or would it part them? How he loved her! He realized the magnitude of his passion for the agony which the thought that she might die had brought him.

"My darling—my little girl," he murmured over and over again.

What did she really feel for him beyond the physical attraction which he knew existed between them?

She knew nothing of his status in life. For her he was probably just some one whom she was attracted by, but of whose worldly position she had taken no account, not thinking of him as a possible husband. He understood that her bringing up, the European point of view, would certainly make her consider a mining engineer not of the same rank as herself, so that it would be love alone which would make her give herself to him. This was a glorious thought.

He would never let her know that he had fortune and breeding behind him, until she was really his own—if he could help it.

Sir Edward would make an awful fuss, and certainly refuse his consent. They would have to have a runaway marriage. Then he would take her down to his old Virginia home, and give her a surprise—something of its old world atmosphere and state would remind her of England. And how his father and his widowed aunt, who lived with them, would rejoice! And all the dear old darlings servants would adore her. He could see "Aunt Minnie," his aunt's old maid, and "Uncle Ephraim," the white-haired butler, grinning from ear to ear.

The whole family had longed for him to marry since he was twenty-five.

Thus his thoughts ran on, each one thrilling him. Then the clock struck three, and as though the sound had awakened her, Nadine started into a sitting position.

It would be safest to give her more whisky, Bayard felt.

So he poured more into the tumbler, and now, with what he had used to bathe her shoulder, the bottle was empty.

She was gazing about her in a dazed way, and shrinking every other moment with the rain. He came over to her with the half-filled glass.

"You must drink some more," he said.

She took it obediently and swallowed about a third, and then pushed it from her.

"Now you must lie down again," he commanded, and she sank back and closed her eyes.

He covered her up, fearing to speak, in case of rousing her completely; so he took the chair by the writing table again, after he had replaced the glass beside the bottle on the table by the door.

He felt that he could not look at her, the temptation to take her in his arms was so great.

Half an hour passed.

Then suddenly Nadine sat up. He went to her at once and made his voice stern.

"You must lie down." She gave a little whimper, as a child would in distress, and then she snuggled into the blankets.

He sat on the bed beside her and covered her up once more. She shut her eyes, and he remained sitting there for a moment—to see what she would do.

Then her little hand stole up and caressed his face leaning against her. Her touch made him quiver.

He put the hand back again under the clothes.

"You must go to sleep," he said. "Do you hear, Miss Pelham?"

Now her face filled with mischief; she seemed to have forgotten the pain in her shoulder. She was lying there pouting and looking at him out of half-shut, alluring blue eyes.

"Bayard," she hissed. "Miss Pelham," indeed! I am Nadine—and you are my lover."

The first tumbler of whisky had killed the poison and saved her life. Could this last small quantity have intoxicated her a little? Bayard wondered. It was not wont to act that way after severe snake-bites, but—

And then suddenly he realized that at all events all inhibitions were nipped in this brain, and the real Nadine was gazing at him with soft voluptuous eyes.

In vino veritas.

Every vestige of the civilized English girl seemed to fall from her as she looked up at him. She was the wild Russian gipsy, with every art to entice a man to heaven or hell at her finger-tips.

"I must sit up," she said. "Bayard, why won't you let me?" She struggled into a sitting position. "I want to stretch."

Short of holding her in bed by the shoulders, and he was afraid of the temptation if he should touch her.

She put her feet to the ground. "You see, I am all right and she held out her arms to him. "I thought you loved me. Don't you?"

"My God! You know I do. But you have been awfully ill; that is why you must rest."

"You must lift me, Bayard. I want to be in your arms."

He controlled his rising emotion, and picked her up and laid her on the bed again.

There were apparently no pins in her hair at all now—the few that had remained had fallen into the bed—it fell just to her neck in thick black curls.

The bright pale scarlet flush was in her cheeks, her lips very red and pursed up as though asking for kisses.

Bayard tried to be matter-of-fact. He went and got the basin of whisky and water again, to moisten the bandage once more. She kept laughing at him, and when he tried to put it on, she turned and kissed his fingers, and hit one of them gently like a little animal at play.

Bayard's pulses were bounding. How was he going to resist this adorable thing?

"Bayard, my knight, come to set me free," she whispered, as though repeating something learned. "I love you—my little girl," he murmured over and over again.

What did she really feel for him beyond the physical attraction which he knew existed between them?

She knew nothing of his status in life. For her he was probably just some one whom she was attracted by, but of whose worldly position she had taken no account, not thinking of him as a possible husband. could see you out of the window, and I knew at once you were my lover and my lord. Why did not you stay that day instead of Eustace? But you will never leave me now—never again, will you? Promise me!"

"Of course not," he said hoarsely, at his wit's end, because her little hands again were caressing his face.

"You are my lover, Bayard. Why are you so cold? Only you don't know how ill you have been. The snake bit your shoulder?"

"Oh, what do I care for snakes? I am here alone with you, and I am going to stay with you always until I die. I am yours, Bayard, tell me you love me." Woman's eternal question!

All the deep-down, primitive instincts, suppressed all her life, were stirring in Nadine. Fear had left her; the training of years had fallen from her. She was conscious of nothing but that she was with the man she loved. Only that which was connected with him stayed in her mind, all else was forgotten; and as the spirit mounted more and more into her head, so she revealed herself to him.

Bayard was going through torture. How was he to keep from responding to her?

He had studied the working of the subconscious mind, and he believed that Nadine was now letting him see her real feeling, whether she were intoxicated or no.

Her voice was not the least thick nor were there any of the usual signs of having taken too much whisky. Only she was utterly fascinating.

"Nadine," he said gravely, unclasping her two tiny hands which clung to his neck, "won't you rest just while I look out and see if they are coming to find us?"

But this roused fierce resentment. "They shall not come! I am yours, and will stay with you—for ever!"

Ah! If this could only be so, if he could only take her away with him for his very own, now without more ado! Her words awakened passionate thoughts. He, too, was having his primitive instincts aroused!

But she was alone with him, entirely at his mercy, and perhaps she was not quite mistress of herself. He must not take the least advantage of her.

"Nadine—sweetheart—" he whispered in a choked voice. "Tomorrow we will arrange everything, but tonight you must lie still and rest. Don't you know that a snake's bite is a dangerous thing, and I must take care of you?"

She put her hand up vaguely to her shoulder. "It's hot," she said, "but it does not hurt. Bayard, why don't you take me in your arms and hold me where I want to be—my lover?"

The young man was almost beside himself, she looked indescribably atluring, her blue eyes, bright as stars, gleaming at him with a world of passion in them, from between her forest of black lashes. He crushed his emotion, and soothed and soothed her, and got her to lie down at last.

Then he went out of the shack into the night. It had begun to lighten in the east; it was nearly four o'clock. His heart was beating, and his head was swimming. Not a sound could be heard.

No, they would have to stay there until morning, and this agonizing temptation would go on. How was he going to be able to be the Knight Bayard through the hours?

While he leaned against the corner of the wall, peering towards the only direction from whence any one could approach them, he might have heard in the distance a motor stop, but his ears were startled by the Victoria within.

Nadine must have set it in motion. It was playing a new record he had brought back from Europe with him—a Russian arrangement of the old national air, as he entered the door he stood still in admiration.

For it seemed a Russian gipsy was dancing there! Round and round the little figure flew, with all the stamping, wildly voluptuous movements which only the gipsies know.

Bayard had seen the Russian ballet and various troupes of dancers at revues, so he recognized the origin of the thing.

He realized that it must be hereditary. The Russian half of Nadine's nature was coming into its own. He grew entirely under the spell of her strange blue eyes looking at him with sensuous passion. They were leading him—where?

She came closer and closer each time she passed, until as last she flung herself into his arms. Bayard was a strong man, and chivalrous, but he was passionately in love.

He put the sternest restraint upon himself once more, and carried her to the bed. She was exhausted by this time and should certainly rest.

She seemed to be quite docile, content that his arms held her; but when he laid her down, with one of her sudden movements she put both arms around his neck, and raising herself, pressed her soft young lips to his.

Then madness seized him, and for one brief moment he lost control of himself, and let the wild passion he was feeling return her kiss.

Oh, the delicious joy of it! Time and place seemed to be swept away, drowned in the exquisite bliss of their first embrace.

The scratching of the Victrola needle coincided with the opening of the cabin door, and Sir Edward, white as death, strode towards them, followed by Eustace.

Truly fate seemed to be closing in upon them with a heavy hand.

In vino veritas.

Every vestige of the civilized English girl seemed to fall from her as she looked up at him. She was the wild Russian gipsy, with every art to entice a man to heaven or hell at her finger-tips.

"I must sit up," she said. "Bayard, why won't you let me?" She struggled into a sitting position. "I want to stretch."

Short of holding her in bed by the shoulders, and he was afraid of the temptation if he should touch her.

She put her feet to the ground. "You see, I am all right and she held out her arms to him. "I thought you loved me. Don't you?"

"My God! You know I do. But you have been awfully ill; that is why you must rest."

"You must lift me, Bayard. I want to be in your arms."

He controlled his rising emotion, and picked her up and laid her on the bed again.

There were apparently no pins in her hair at all now—the few that had remained had fallen into the bed—it fell just to her neck in thick black curls.

The bright pale scarlet flush was in her cheeks, her lips very red and pursed up as though asking for kisses.

Bayard tried to be matter-of-fact. He went and got the basin of whisky and water again, to moisten the bandage once more. She kept laughing at him, and when he tried to put it on, she turned and kissed his fingers, and hit one of them gently like a little animal at play.

Bayard's pulses were bounding. How was he going to resist this adorable thing?

"Bayard, my knight, come to set me free," she whispered, as though repeating something learned. "I love you—my little girl," he murmured over and over again.

What did she really feel for him beyond the physical attraction which he knew existed between them?

She knew nothing of his status in life. For her he was probably just some one whom she was attracted by, but of whose worldly position she had taken no account, not thinking of him as a possible husband. He understood that her bringing up, the European point of view, would certainly make her consider a mining engineer not of the same rank as herself, so that it would be love alone which would make her give herself to him. This was a glorious thought.

He would never let her know that he had fortune and breeding behind him, until she was really his own—if he could help it.

Sir Edward would make an awful fuss, and certainly refuse his consent. They would have to have a runaway marriage. Then he would take her down to his old Virginia home, and give her a surprise—something of its old world atmosphere and state would remind her of England. And how his father and his widowed aunt, who lived with them, would rejoice! And all the dear old darlings servants would adore her. He could see "Aunt Minnie," his aunt's old maid, and "Uncle Ephraim," the white-haired butler, grinning from ear to ear.

The whole family had longed for him to marry since he was twenty-five.

Thus his thoughts ran on, each one thrilling him. Then the clock struck three, and as though the sound had awakened her, Nadine started into a sitting position.

It would be safest to give her more whisky, Bayard felt.

So he poured more into the tumbler, and now, with what he had used to bathe her shoulder, the bottle was empty.

She was gazing about her in a dazed way, and shrinking every other moment with the rain. He came over to her with the half-filled glass.

"You must drink some more," he said.

She took it obediently and swallowed about a third, and then pushed it from her.

"Now you must lie down again," he commanded, and she sank back and closed her eyes.

He covered her up, fearing to speak, in case of rousing her completely; so he took the chair by the writing table again, after he had replaced the glass beside the bottle on the table by the door.

He felt that he could not look at her, the temptation to take her in his arms was so great.

Half an hour passed.

Then suddenly Nadine sat up. He went to her at once and made his voice stern.

"You must lie down." She gave a little whimper, as a child would in distress, and then she snuggled into the blankets.

He sat on the bed beside her and covered her up once more. She shut her eyes, and he remained sitting there for a moment—to see what she would do.

Then her little hand stole up and caressed his face leaning against her. Her touch made him quiver.

He put the hand back again under the clothes.

"You must go to sleep," he said. "Do you hear, Miss Pelham?"

Now her face filled with mischief; she seemed to have forgotten the pain in her shoulder. She was lying there pouting and looking at him out of half-shut, alluring blue eyes.

"Bayard," she hissed. "Miss Pelham," indeed! I am Nadine—and you are my lover."

The first tumbler of whisky had killed the poison and saved her life. Could this last small quantity have intoxicated her a little? Bayard wondered. It was not wont to act that way after severe snake-bites, but—

And then suddenly he realized that at all events all inhibitions were nipped in this brain, and the real Nadine was gazing at him with soft voluptuous eyes.

In vino veritas.

Every vestige of the civilized English girl seemed to fall from her as she looked up at him. She was the wild Russian gipsy, with every art to entice a man to heaven or hell at her finger-tips.

Dance Lovers Given Treat In 'Good Morning, Dearie'

To be hilariously frank, the main ingredient in the concoction of a successful musical show is girls. Bearing in mind that axiom of the entertainment profession, "Good Morning, Dearie," now holding forth at the Atlanta theater, is one whole of a good show. It will continue to display the aforementioned dramatic ability for the remainder of the week with a matinee on Saturday.

Speaking in a scientific manner, as an analyst of theatrical prescriptions, there is an important fact about this show which has a great deal to do with its unusual lure. It is a fact which is striking by reason of its rarity in this day of anatomical display. There isn't a barelegged girl in the entire performance.

Think that sentence over and, if you don't give thanks, your reaction to the plethora of nether nakedness which has pranced across the national stage in recent years, is different from mine.

The Beauty Winner.

The girls in "Good Morning, Dearie," are, speaking generically, good enough to look upon as a body's money. And there are a number of them good looking far beyond the average. And there is one—but she deserves another paragraph.

They told me before the show started that this lady had won two first prizes in national beauty contests. Let it be recorded without delay that the judges in those contests displayed not an iota of favoritism. For this lady, with an old beauty show on her merits, regardless. It doesn't take a measuring tape and a magnifying glass to prove it, either. Her name is Polly Walker and her part in the performance is that of leading lady. She walks and dances and charms away with it, to the most lovely taste.

Really, there is a lack in nomenclature felt here, for as far as can be recalled, the show world has no properly descriptive phrase for this kind of a show. On the program it is called a "musical comedy." Now, even a babe in arms, theatrically speaking, knows the difference between "musical comedy," "comic opera," "revue" and "vaudeville." But this doesn't fit under any of these headings. For, while its plenitude of pulchritudinous ladies qualifies for high honors in any one, it isn't really the music which is the chief attraction otherwise, it is the dancing.

Never saw two acts so filled with dancing. Everybody in the cast, with rare exceptions, dances. The chorus proper dances just about as musical comedy choruses do dance. But there is a kind of extra chorus, a chorus de luxe, which is included in the company solely for its dancing ability. These are the "Sunbeam Girls," and they appear in three special dancing numbers, at various stages of the program, which improve steadily, until the final one is nearly perfect, of its kind.

Then the leading lady of the glorious looks, is no mean dancer herself. She dances through number after number in gaudy, gaudy, gaudy, and, as it is said, with artistic equipment, clothes, he it noted again, in the silky beauty of expensive hobble.

The leading man can dance. The villain is the star dancer of them all. His partner is just as good. Even the comedy dancers in a comical manner. Everybody else dances and there is that special dancing chorus. You just couldn't have more dancing and more music, for the music, the plot and the comedy.

Now to refer to those three—

Many Good Numbers.

The music—half a score of good numbers. Two, at least, that are extra good. One, "Ka-La-La," already popular and whistleable, and one—well, the music of this is "The Blue Danube Waltz." No more need be said.

There is a trio number sung by the villain, the second villain, and the comedian that is a heavy weight, long while. It is called "Easy Pickin'." and the only trouble Thursday night was they wouldn't give enough encore.

The plot—well, you know, musical

SUNBAMER PUTS TWO IN BED

Newton, Mass., February 7.—An exchange of shots between Louis F. Curtis, wealthy clubman and sportsman, and a man believed to be Roy G. Vance, of Haverhill, in the sun porch of Curtis' home, resulted in the fashionable Chestnut Hill district early today, sent both men to hospitals. Curtis sustained only a slight wound in the arm, but Vance was found to be in a critical condition.

A policeman who hurried to the Curtis home in response to a telephone call was informed that a maid upon coming downstairs this morning saw a well dressed man lying on the sun porch. The maid, who was a colored woman, had been removed and beside him were a revolver and a flashlight. The maid said that she called Curtis, who came downstairs with an automatic pistol in his hand, and that as soon as he and Vance saw each other both opened fire.

All of Curtis' four shots took effect and he was hit in the arm by one of Vance's shots. In spite of his wounds Vance opened the door and ran to the street. He was seen to board a trolley car for Boston and in the Brighton district policemen boarded the car and found him. Curtis was taken to the Newton hospital. Vance was taken to the Newton hospital. The police have not yet learned how Vance happened to be in the porch. Curtis is a crack pistol shot and trap shooter and a member of the club of the Boston Athletic association.

Use of Churches As Schools Urged By Forrest Klan

Rearranging of churches, including Sunday school departments, so that they may be used as school rooms on week days, thus relieving present overcrowding in the schools of the city, was suggested in resolutions passed Thursday night at a meeting of Nathan Bedford Forrest Klan No. 1.

Whereas, there have been numerous reports from officials of the Atlanta school department and members of the city and county of the fact that the present school facilities of the city are inadequate to the needs of our children, and

Whereas, the financial condition of the city is such that it is impossible to build new school buildings at this time, and

Whereas, there can be no higher medium of service to the community than the church, and

Therefore be it resolved, That we, the members of the Nathan Bedford Forrest Klan No. 1, in lawful session, urge upon the ministers and governing bodies of the various churches of our city that they give consideration to the rearranging of their respective Sunday school departments, so that they may be used as school rooms on week days, thus providing for those of our children who otherwise would be without school facilities or adequate to the needs of our children.

It is further resolved, That it is the sense of this organization that the existing conditions of the city, and the overcrowding of the churches could not be borne in a better case.

WIFE PERSUADED BY ANOTHER MAN TO KILL HUSBAND

Prince Albert, Sask., February 7.—Mrs. Katherine Tratch was sentenced last night by Justice J. F. Lemieux to hand May 20 after a jury returned a verdict of guilty on a charge of first degree murder in connection with the slaying of her husband in the Fish Creek district October 30.

During the trial, testimony was introduced to show she was persuaded to kill her husband by another man.

Elusive Matron Jailed in Kimona After 2 Escapes

Chicago, February 7.—Dropping fifteen feet from a window to the snowy pavement, Mrs. Louise Allen eluded detectives who wanted her on a bad check charge and ran away in her pink kimona.

Two hours later the officers learned she was visiting a friend and they went there again. She asked permission to dress and the detectives closed the door. Again she jumped out a window.

Six hours later the sleuths located the elusive Mrs. Allen in the basement of the North Chicago hospital and disregarding a request for time to dress, took her to a police station in her kimona.

William Homer Walker, infant son of Mrs. Louise Allen, was found in the basement of the North Chicago hospital and disregarding a request for time to dress, took her to a police station in her kimona.
